

Curriculum Vitae of Daniel T. Ramsdell, Esq

AUGUST 2024

BACKGROUND

Let me introduce myself to you. My name is Dan Ramsdell, and I love to sue trucking companies for plaintiffs that are catastrophically injured.

In fact, that is all I do in my law practice. I have always been motivated to work hard on these trucking cases, as my mother and I were almost killed in a crash with a negligent commercial motor vehicle driver when I was 17 years old. Our attorney also did a really lousy job. I have been on the other side of the desk and I truly care about and understand what our clients are going through. In the past I have been a frequently invited lecturer, national author, and educator on the subject of interstate trucking litigation for trial lawyers and trial lawyer associations all across the country.

My professional time is devoted to making the highways safer by attempting to reduce the numbers of deaths and crashes that are caused by unsafe and illegally operating interstate trucking companies. I am frequently hired by large law firms across the country as co-counsel in their catastrophic and complex trucking cases that are extremely difficult, complex, high risk and very time consuming. Occasionally I may be retained to serve as a trucking liability and punitive damages trial consultant. I often work 60 or more hours a week and am very dedicated to the task.

Along the way since I began practicing law in 1977, I have acquired an expertise in the Federal Motor Carrier Regulations and plaintiff's interstate trucking litigation. What is perhaps even more important, today I am aware of, and experienced in, avoiding and attacking the multiple landmines and traps that the defense uses in their never-ending attempts to deny justice to those who have been catastrophically injured by negligent motor carriers. This has often worked to the great advantage of my clients and to the great disadvantage of many negligent trucking companies.

DAN'S THOUGHTS ABOUT WHAT IT TAKES TO GET JUSTICE IN INTERSTATE TRUCKING CASES TODAY

A plaintiff interstate trucking lawyer must not only know how to win, but also how NOT to lose. A good defense against the defendants' attempts to deny the plaintiffs justice is very often one of the most important skills a plaintiff interstate trucking lawyer must possess. That is especially important today as federal preemption under the Federal Aviation Administration Authorization Act (FAAAA) is raising its ugly head far too often in the trucking industry in front of conservative judges and keeping deserving catastrophically injured plaintiffs from recovering anything from the negligent trucking company who would otherwise be held responsible for their damages.

Each plaintiff interstate trucking case has a multitude of potentially liable defendants and multiple causes of action that most lawyers who are unskilled or inexperienced in interstate trucking litigation would most likely never even consider, much less properly plead and file a complaint with the several unique causes of action that are available.

Some of these causes of action and legal theories are so unique, that interstate trucking defendants most often seek a confidentiality agreement to keep these unique, sometimes “unicorn” trucking scam cases and causes of action from publication. This is an attempt to prevent millions of extra dollars being recovered by several other similarly situated and deserving members of the motoring public who have also been catastrophically injured.

Today’s interstate trucking plaintiff’s lawyer must also successfully conduct thorough, timely and sweeping discovery including competently preparing for and taking critical depositions of key witnesses in order to make the case and to preserve the important evidence before it is lost, forgotten or destroyed. Only then can the plaintiff’s interstate trucking lawyer obtain recoveries against the defendants that achieve true justice for the plaintiffs.

It has been my decades- long habit to take the important and critical time necessary to do this work and limit the numbers of trucking cases that my law firm takes in at any one time to make this possible. Accordingly, today I enjoy the reputation of being able to find a basis for punitive damages in nearly every single interstate trucking case that my law firm is involved in.

DAN’S PAST ACADEMIC HISTORY

Dan was the President of his senior class at Parkview High School in Springfield, MO, and was the recipient of the Missouri Curators Award for high scholastic achievement, graduating in 1968. While also working part time, Dan graduated from Southwest Missouri State University in December of 1971, a semester early, with a B.S. degree in Marketing. While in college, Dan was an invited member of Pi Omega Pi, the Scholastic Honor Society for Business majors. He maintained a straight A average in his major field of study.

In 1974, Dan attended the University of Arkansas School of Law in Fayetteville and based upon his grades and demonstrated abilities, Dan was especially appointed by the Dean of the law school to serve as the Student Director of the Texarkana Prison Project. This was a special federally funded law firm of law students who were permitted, by special rule, to actually practice law before graduation from law school.

Dan was also elected Vice President of the Law Student Bar Association, and while in law school, was also the selected by the law faculty to serve as the State Director of the University of Arkansas Legal Research Bureau. It provided legal research to practicing attorneys with complex legal research requests. Dan also served in the law school legal aid program, providing free legal assistance to indigent persons.

Dan graduated from law school a semester early after just 2 ½ years, while also working part time in the law school library and while also serving in the U.S. Missouri Army National Guard, where he was the legal clerk for the headquarters, and was also awarded the expert marksmanship award.

While he was a law student at the University Of Arkansas Law School in Fayetteville, Dan was also a former law student of our now former U.S. President, Bill Clinton, and remains friends with him to this day.

EXPERIENCE

On many occasions Dan has obtained multi-million dollar recoveries on behalf of plaintiffs in interstate trucking cases. There are numerous articles in legal publications regarding Dan and the results he has obtained for his clients.

Due to his nationally recognized expertise and experience in establishing liability and punitive damages in almost any type of interstate trucking case, most of Dan's clients are now law firms from across America who hire him as co-counsel on their interstate trucking cases. He has successfully litigated interstate trucking cases in well over a dozen different states.

Dan is one of the very few lawyers in America who limits his practice to plaintiff interstate trucking litigation only. He loves to "Put The Brakes On Unsafe Trucking Companies" and is motivated by his truck crash and the injuries he and his mother sustained when he was 17. As a result, Dan is considered by many to be one of the most passionate and devoted plaintiff lawyers in interstate trucking litigation today.

Following is a partial list of some of Dan's accomplishments in the legal profession:

XVIII. DAN WAS THE ONLY ATTORNEY IN THE NATION

CHOSEN BY HARVARD UNIVERSITY TO SPEAK AT AN INTERNATIONAL PRIVATE SYMPOSIUM ON FATIGUED DRIVING HELD AT HARVARD UNIVERSITY

Dan was humbled and honored to be the only attorney in the entire nation that was especially chosen by Harvard University to participate there in an exclusive international closed symposium on fatigued driving safety issues in the trucking industry.

In addition to Dan, those participating in Harvard's private symposium on fatigued driving in the trucking industry included Japanese executives who travelled to Harvard for the symposium and some Japanese who were members of the equivalent of our FMCSA. Also attending were a very select group of invited U.S. medical doctors nationally and internationally recognized for their medical expertise in the areas of fatigue, sleep deprivation, obstructive sleep apnea and the dangers those conditions posed to the motoring public.

The purpose of the symposium was to assist the Japanese government to address the problems in Japan caused by fatigued driving and to help them reduce fatigued driving in their commercial motor vehicle fleets.

XIX. NATIONAL TELEVISION SERIES - INTERSTATE TRUCKING IN AMERICA

Mr. Ramsdell helped to coordinate the network series and was chosen to appear in New York City on NBC in the nationally televised special series on the dangerous interstate trucking in America and the multiple dangers that violations of the FMCSRs posed for the motoring public. Dan also participated in multiple local television appearances in Springfield, Mo and was a frequent guest on KTTS Radio in Springfield, MO involving multiple legal topics. Dan was also a go-to expert on national television, national magazines and the Associated Press.

XX. PAST INTERSTATE TRUCKING LIABILITY TRIAL CONSULTING

Through his numerous nationwide efforts and experience as noted above, Dan has provided years of informal trial consulting to hundreds of plaintiff trial lawyers all across America regarding establishing liability and punitive damages in the interstate trucking industry. A nationally renowned trial attorney has publicly stated that through his efforts Dan has contributed more to the interstate trucking litigation education of the plaintiff's bar than any single lawyer in the history of American jurisprudence.

XXI. CURRENT INTERSTATE TRUCKING LIABILITY TRIAL CONSULTING

Dan is also a member of the American Society of Trial Consultants, Inc.

Subject to work product, Dan can occasionally serve as a confidentially retained and non-testifying trial consultant in the areas of complex catastrophic interstate trucking liability and punitive damages only.

While engaged in his role as a trial consultant, Dan does not practice law, but simply assists the trial attorney in enhancing his skills and abilities to better enhance and more effectively identify and communicate critical trucking industry evidence for presentation to decision makers in all aspects of the case.
